The ballots to be used in the election next week were printed at the office of the Coconino Sun, Flagstaff. Hon. F. S. Breen, the proprietor of that live newspaper in the "Skylight City," was right on time delivering the goods, although delayed by a re-order occasioned by Judge Campbell's decision to the effect that no vignettes should go on the ballots and making it necessary to print over again. Anyway through the up-to-date methods of Col Breen and his competent force employed in his various departments, the voters can go to the polls next Tuesday and vote the "big ballot" straight or otherwise, as they desire, without delay and without molesting or making anybody afraid—except it be the candidates.

Jesse Marble transacted business in the county seat town this week and called in to see us while here.

Edmund Nelson was in town from Eagar this week and called in to see us while although very busy.

Our friend F. M. Cook brought in the "big ballots" from Hunt Tuesday night, arriving here after the editor had taken his usual 2-hr. nap in the office. Mr. Cook is "from Missouri" but having lived out large hunks of his life in Oklahoma, Texas and Arizona, he doesn't have to "be shown" in anything going on this busy-day world. He says, however, that he doesn't quite understand the editor of this great family newspaper; he accuses the editor of leaning up against a fence, a wall or against any old thing, and laughing at him when he begins to talk about something. Cook good naturedly admits that this is only an eccentricity of the editor which bodes no ill feelings or harm in any way.

Capt. C. C. Naegle of Concho was over this week, looking after business matters, and while here looked in upon us poor fellows who have to work in another line to keep the wolf from the door.

CONCHO RESERVOIR DAM BROKE.

The Concho Reservoir dam went out last Tuesday morning, emptying all the water stored in it. The break is not very extensive, and the flood caused by the break did no damage of any consequence to the town and property situated below, as they are considerably above the course of the arroyo below the dam. The loss is considerable. But the people of that enterprising town and vicinity are already taking steps to repair and build up the dam, better than ever before. There was a big flood down the Concho Creek as a consequence of the break, but the damage was slight. This is the dam near the big spring above the town; the other reservoir dams were not injured to great extent.

Our ballots this year, dear brethren, are somewhat longer than the ones formerly used by us in our "orphan county" but you will find it just as easy to vote it as the shorter ones of by-gone years, as it is the same method drawn out. You will notice the proposed Amendment at the bottom of the ticket, which is also to be voted on, regardless of the way you happen to mark up the state and county ticket above question. Don't forget to vote on the away-down-below-bottom part of the "big ballot," as Statehood's Salvation depends largely upon how the majority of voters cast their ballots on this question.

Through the courtesy of Hon. Heber Jarvis of the firm of Jarvis, Hamblin and Dewitt, proprietors of the Eagar-Holbrook mail line, and their efficient agents along the route, this office got in its "big ballots" on the "Canon Ball Express," the shipment leaving Holbrook Tuesday morning and getting in here the same day.

County treasurer A. B. Candalaria, who is now chairman of the central committee, was in town this week, taking care of the interests of the committee and also attending to other business of importance.

Both the republicans and the democrats are active in making a thorough campaign of Apache County this year, having Rallies and Grand Balls at different towns in the county and telling why the candidates of the two respective parties for county offices should be elected. All this is as it should be without any "mud-slinging" so far as we are aware because we are all neighbors—and it is hoped the entire campaign will be conducted likewise without anything being said or done for which any one may feel ashamed after the election is passed. If a candidate cannot get an office without vile "mud-slinging," he should be administered a kick in the rear elevation of his political pantaloons which would send him forever across the political river Styx. Neighbors in Apache County have not as yet indulged and we don't believe they will.

H. L. Marble is now holding down the business of the County Recorder's office in the busy political season, as deputy for County Recorder O. D. Gallegos, who is looking after business matters in the Dry Goods Emporium of A. and B. Schuster, and also learning housekeeping as a model newly wed husband should do.

Hon. N. Gonzales, member of the firm of Becker Mercantile Co., and candidate on the republican ticket for state representative, was in town this week seeing the people who are going to vote for him, before the first state election for the new state of Arizona. Mr. Gonzales has served in the territorial legislatures, and he will go into the state legislature with the benefit of much experience in legislation.

THE CHANCE OF YOUR LIFE.

We will personally conduct a trip around the world. Transportation, best of dining car service, stop offs at five of the most prominent cities. Trains will leave depot (the Academy) promptly at 5:30, 6, 6:30, 7, p. m. Friday 15th, all for 50c. a ticket which will be for sale at the A. C. M. L. on the 11th and 12th.

THE PRIMARY ASSOCIATION.

J. R. Overton is now wearing his steenth pair of fine boots made to special order, within the last three months this frequent change of footgear is not on account of the boots wearing out, but because Bob's friends like the boots so well that he finds it profitable to "swap 'em off" for dogies and other live stock.
